

Niños de México is a missionary project of Christian churches around the world dedicated to extending Christ's loving care to abandoned, abused and orphaned children.

In Mexico City, more than 1.5 million children have no home. They are often victims of abuse and live on the streets, scrounging through garbage cans for their meals and turning to crime to survive. Niños de México rescues these children. The Christian organization provides homes, a school and a medical clinic to help address the problem — one child at a time.

Staff and volunteers teach the children that they matter to God. At Niños de México, the children receive hot meals, a safe home, education, lessons on living a Biblical life, and plenty of love. They typically remain part of the Niños de México family until adulthood.
